Contribution to the Publications

I was the lead researcher and also the first author in most of the publications. I appear on the first position in seven of the co-authored papers. This is because I developed the research ideas, planned the research method with co-authors, monitored the field data collection, wrote the manuscript and was the corresponding author. In the other papers where I was not the first author, I developed the research idea with the first author, collected the data but the first author was responsible for the correspondence.
